Course title: CASE STUDY AND MOOT COURT
Teachers: Prof. Dr. Vladimir Pavić, LL.M. Assist. Prof. Dr. Milena Đorđević, LL.M. Assist. Prof. Dr. Marko Jovanović, LL.M.
Course status: optional skill
Number of ECTS: 2
Requirements: /
Aims of the course: The students are supposed to acquire the skills of advocacy before national and international courts and arbitrations. In that sense, this course represents a logical sequel to the general course in rhetorics. Additionally, depending on the subject-matter of the moot court, the course should provide students with the capacity to further examine the disputed issues and learn how to analyse them more thoroughly. Analysis of comparative legal framework is particularly emphasized and attention is given both to domestic and to foreign arbitral practice. The preparations for national and international moot court competitions form an integral part of the course.
Course result: Students are supposed to become familiar with the way in which litigation, arbitration or other types of proceedings unfold, learn to critically examine various dispute resolution methods and see what are the key aspects that influence the decision on the most desirable dispute resolution method to be selected.
